Hello, I'm deeply sorry for the 68th time, now. Or as it's more than possible for the children of the future to say 'Six eeeeeeight!' Why did no one ever say 'Six siiiiix!'? Actually, that's the favourite slang of the devil, it's something he shouts when he doesn't mean anything, either. The numbers 65, 64, 63 etc. also mean nothing, but they were only used in biblical times. Anyway, what am I sorry for, now? For calling Joe Satriani a sick M.F. who throws people in rivers. It was just a misunderstanding, that's all. As he has a song called S.M.F. that Wikipedia says means 'sick mother F' I thought the worst when I read his other song title 'Down, Down, Down'. It doesn't refer to a watery grave, it could simply refer to how he feels when he's around me. Yes I know the song was written in 1995 when I was 7, but just like I can predict future slang, Joe can get vibes from children in other countries. I actually think that's more impressive than his guitar playing. Who knows, maybe Wiki just ASSUMED that's what S.M.F. stands for. Maybe it means Sweet Melon Face. He has a song dedicated to his wife, simply called 'Rubina' but that sounds very obvious and uncreative to me. Again, I prefer Sweet Melon Face, or if her face doesn't look like a melon, how about Super Mega Feet? An ideal song title if Rubina is a swimmer or kickboxer. As in 'Joe Satriani's beloved wife Super Mega Feet is undefeated after all this time. Will she be able to defeat Steve Vai's wife Speedy Mighty Fighter??'

I'm wondering if famous guitarists having kickboxing wives with the initials S.M.F. is a common thing… Eddie Van Halen's wife could have the nickname 'Swift Mean Fists'. If so, what's going on? My theory would be that two types of people compliment each other. Who's the ideal partner of a sensitive musician who wants to create a piece of art everyone can relate to? A woman who is capable of kicking someone very hard, albeit legally. I would obviously have to apologise to Joe again if I suggested his wife often gets charged with G.B.H. Again, she only causes suffering within the law. Nope, I still have to apologise don't I? Seems like projection to me, as it's me who causes suffering legally. Saying someone's name over and over again isn't a crime and that's what I do if I don't like someone. Ouch. Despite my legit-sounding theory, I simply can't explain why all the fighters would have the same initials, though. A lack of creativity? Such athletes are often 'sensers' rather than 'intuitives' after all, and if you've read MBTI theory, sadly Sensers are less creative. Intuitives like me aren't so good at fighting which sounds bad as well, suggesting everyone has strengths and weaknesses, but most people don't really want to be described as violent thugs so it isn't bad really. Basically I'm sayings Intuitives are better than Sensers. Why are the former rarer then? I mean if they were that good, you'd expect them to be everywhere. Well, you can have too much of a good thing, I'm like ice cream.

Do I have to apologise to Joe for saying he can sense vibes of children in other countries? I mean it sounds impressive but at the same time, that could also be the kind of thing I'd say to annoy someone. It could also give people false hopes. Rubina would be like 'Joe, you're incredible! You REALLY know what other children are like thousands of miles away without even seeing or hearing them?? Wow!' How is he supposed to respond to that? I suppose he'd be like 'Rubina… Simon is a mentally ill liar, you shouldn't listen to what he says.' It's ok Joe, I understand, you said that out of anger. I'm not mentally ill actually, not now I'm on Clozapine, anyway. Ah of course, you can be mentally ill in other ways, you got me. Can the medicine cure conditions other than schizophrenia? I don't think so. I actually saw a Youtube video listing about 20 mental illnesses and I was thinking to myself '… I have more than half of these….' Also, I never blog lie, as how would you believe anything I say if I fibbed just the one time? Having said that, I don't have the most thrilling blog of all time, although I do enjoy going to Staines. To wrap things up, I will always like Joe's music as it's super awesome and I'm more than certain the wives of various guitar heroes don't beat each other up for legit sports or otherwise. As I've previously pointed out, Rubina sounds like children's drink Ribena and how is that supposed to be threatening? (Perhaps giving me the idea of Sweet Melon Face). And bye!