I asked A.I. what it thought me and James Ziegler's MBTI types were, and it said either INTP or ENTP for both of us. Apparently, neither types care about societal norms, hence the typing. It's not so much I don't care, it's like toddlers who rightly question why they shouldn't put their elbows on tables. With me, I take things a little bit further. I'm like a toddler but more radical, you could say. The rule is dumb, isn't it? I also think it's dumb saying 'please' and 'thank you', instead I show my elbows defiantly and leave. Ok, not really. In fact, when someone pointed out I didn't have my car headlights on, I was genuinely grateful. No one got run over that night, I can tell you. I also didn't show my elbows. Personally, I blame the indifference to rules on a personality disorder, but who knows maybe all ENTPs and INTPs have such disorders. Excellent strategists with deep personalities, but complete assholes who don't care about society. Well, that SEEMS harsh but as mentioned recently, I did once know a psych site that could be very cruel, so maybe that comment would go down very well with the owner. I did find him or her to be insightful as the claim that INFPs (my type) are incompetent dealt a crushing blow. It's true, it's true, I keep getting lost and I don't know why! However, I have grown over time and have accepted that part of me. I didn't at first though, in fact as a 6 year old, the police were called! You know what? I'm going to say both ENTPs and INTPs are very nice here, just so I don't have to write ANOTHER apology so soon; I want apology 67 to say nonsense phrase 'six seeveeeeen!' over and over again, and as far as I know, that has nothing to do with ENTPs or INTPs. If it has? I would love to ask simply 'why??'

A.I. also suggested I was a 'T' because on my homepage it says I want to outsmart a scientist. I do, I do want to outsmart a scientist! That implies if you ever ask anyone if they'd like to outsmart such a person and he claims he's an 'F', you will know he's lying. I think that's a fun tip, essential if you're planning a career in personal profiling. The interviewee would be like 'Ah, you got me. Of COURSE feelers don't want to outsmart scientists, they're too focused on complimenting them!' As an INFP, I like to compliment scientists, too. I like their clean, white clothes. Anyway, it's a slightly wrong typing by A.I. there, again I'm an INFP, but a very good guess. The Dominant Egg is apparently an ESTP or an ENTJ which is also wrong as he's an ENFP. I get it though, ESTPs are associated with thrill seeking and ENTJs are known for being dominant. Interestingly, the pig cadaver is a depressed INFP! A.I. says he has 'no desire to control' but I thought that was because he was dead! Also, I never knew dead pigs were emotional but I do understand how they would be introverted. Extremely introverted, in fact. Philip the Angry Gerbil is either an ESTJ or ESFP. His 'control of his (gerbil) cage' suggests he is 'microscopically tyrannical'. I'm wondering if A.I. is suggesting that as I made Philip up, I'm tyrannical deep down. :S I guess there are some people I would like to cage. I'm not an ESTJ or ESFP though and I'm certainly not like a dead pig so again, take this stuff with a pinch of salt, though yeah, the cage theory has promise. Le Poisson Militaire was called an ENTJ simply because he has conquered 95% of the world (and Italy may fall soon), so A.I. is suggesting all ENTJ want to conquer the world. If so, I suggest giving people MBTI tests before giving out Nobel peace prizes. Weed out the warmongers.

Let's ask A.I. what my type is again as its known to change its mind… Yep, this time it has suggested either ENTP, ENFP, INTP or INFP (most likely an ENTP). As there are 16 types, A.I. had a one in four chance of getting the right answer there, so it could have been worse, I guess. It is worth stressing though that I am not like a dead pig. I've asked about James again, and now I've been told he could be an ENFP. I was surprised when I read his behaviour was 'rarely about emotional malice', he just likes to play mind games and to see how long it takes for other people to snap. So there you go, if someone keeps winding you up endlessly for years and tries to mentally destroy you, you can find comfort in the fact he may mean well. Let's ask A.I. what it thinks my enneagram type is… Most likely a 4w5 and possibly a 7w6? Yes, you were right the first time! That's interesting as ENTPs are almost never 4w5s... It says I'm likely a 4 because most of my musical tastes are very niche. That's a coincidence! It's just that the best artists are usually unknown! You're missing out on Darren Housholder if you don't listen to him, I can tell you. Well, this is a self-absorbed article, isn't it? I'm finding it interesting, though. Apparently I could be a 7 because of my dislike of boredom. No, my life is exceptionally boring but to be fair, I don't like it being that way. A very strange person would. 4s are apparently known for pointing out their flaws just for the sake of being different which sounds stupid, but at least I'm not depressed and on that wise note… bye!