

I'm starting to get just a little bit tired of my site and my album reviews for Metal Rules are a while away. Hm, tricky situation. I know, I'll just rank random words again, but... with a twist! Let's take things further and do 13 random words this time, instead of 12. Wow. Extreme. Here we go!

In last place is...

Bother

Bother has to come last. I mean this is a list of things that bother me the most! Being bothered really does bother me, in that respect I'm just like everyone else. Common ground. I guess it could be worse. A plane crash would be worse than being bothered maybe. Actually no, a plane crash would still bother me technically speaking. In that case I'd be extremely bothered, wouldn't I? Common ground.

Slime

Is all slime bothersome? I would say no. What about if you sneezed on a flame? Would it put it out before things got out of control? I would think so. Most slime however, is bad. You wouldn't want someone to sneeze on you. Unless of course you were about to burst into flames. :S

Vague

Another word with pros and cons. Get vague instructions from a rocket scientist and it goes too far and fast and before you know it, it's in another galaxy, but vague poetry or lyrics? That's actually encouraged! If you do write vague words, the listener will make the song about himself and like it even more. There's a Van Halen song called 'On Fire'. In that case it's really best you don't take the lyrics literally. It's actually about being super cool. Well, that's how I interpret them anyway. If a madman wants the lyrics to be taken literally that's up to him.

Inappropriate

I don't massively care if something is inappropriate. Still though, if potential employee looks odd in a job interview, it will be a lot worse than being vague. But say something inappropriate (but not criminally so!!!!) to someone you'll never see again, and it's something you can laugh about later.

Boot

Note how the word is 'boot' and not 'boots'. What can you do with a single boot? Not a lot. You could literally give someone the boot if you want to fire them in a humorous way, but I'd imagine that would cause even more pain. On the plus side, normal usage of a single boot is rarely truly negative. Just put it in a cupboard and forget about it.

Queen

Sorry for putting the queen so low on the list, it's just that I've never even met her.

She's certainly better than slime, though. Even better than a boot! The queen was CERTAINLY not the kind of person to put in a cupboard and forget about!! Great stuff.

Relative

Some relatives are better than others. Some are perfectly reasonable, others I could happily lock away in a cupboard. Let's face it, many are bothersome. But not all, and that's the most important thing.

Responsible

I like it when other people are responsible, at least. Do I like being responsible? No. In fact I fear it. However, I am only one person in a world of 8 billion others. A world of 7,999,999,999 responsible people? I guess that's ok.

Simplicity

Ah, I do like it when things are simple, we're getting really good now. Simple instructions/directions? Heaven. On the other hand, do I want the universe to be simple? Do I want it to be all explained in an equation such as 'U (for universe) = 5 + 2'. No. That's too simple, it would ruin the mystery.

Face

Everyone has faces. Very important for showing moods, etc. However, I do miss wearing masks during the pandemic. Haven't felt so free in a long time, I felt anonymous and mysterious, if a potential mugger. They were crazy times, everyone could have had a knife on them, you just wouldn't know. Even so, other people didn't seem to like me wearing a mask quite so much. And you know what? It's good to see faces again. In a way.

Charismatic

Everyone has a different idea of what is charismatic. Personally I think the people in Jackass are likeable as they handle pain so well. Some people think George Clooney is charismatic. Yeah? Well how well would he handle a good kick on the balls? I don't know him, but if I'd guess? Not as well. So for me at least, he just isn't cool.

Loyalty

Most people would prefer being around a loyal person rather than someone who is charismatic, I'm sure. So if you can't handle a kick to the balls? Don't worry too much. However, if you're neither charismatic or loyal, maybe you do need to work on yourself.

Future

My future is going to be super awesome and filled with all kinds of wacky adventures and fantastic flavours, which is why I prefer it loyal people, charismatic people and even the finest faces. The adventures haven't started YET, quite the opposite, but the flavours have so I'm half way there already. :O

Ok, thirteen words ranked from worst to best! Well I hope my future will be good, anyway. Let's face it, my future is at least vague, so you could say it isn't first rate or 1 out of 13, but 11th out of 13. But that's a depressing way of looking at life. Yeah, I think what's coming up for me is better than someone hurting himself in an amusing way. Ok, that doesn't sound too impressive, but my future being better than an adorable loyal puppy? THAT'S good. Bye!