

Simon: Technically I've been writing this monologue for a year, now. Is it as impressive as it sounds? Not really, 99% of my time was spent simply listing words, in particular every single word of the day of my Wiedemann Comedy site since the start of 2024. However, I'm probably not going to do another of these monologues as I can't really be bothered, so let's treat this as a special event with an appearance from the now global star that is the Dominant Egg!

DE: Thank you for having me.

Simon: And would you like to explain to our readers why your career has suddenly exploded? Does it have anything to do with your fiancé Wendy?

DE: Bingo. There is a downside, though...

Simon: And what is that?

DE: I'm getting a lot of hate from jealous eggs, even jealous people. Stuff like 'Dominant Egg, you're nothing', 'Charlie, I'm going to find you' that kind of stuff.

Simon: I'm so sorry.

DE: Well, Wendy drives people crazy. Once I just thought about her and I stole from someone.

Simon: Is that true?

DE: I once thought about Wendy as I was playing the role of a thief and I stole from someone.

Simon: Oh, that's not so bad...

DE: But I was really into the role...

Simon: Ok. Well let's get onto the first shapes!

DE: You're really doing a monologue about this?

Simon: You don't like it?

DE: It's ok... but it's not really a monologue is it?

Simon: What is it then?

DE: It's a list...

Simon: It features you, though...

DE: You think an egg talking about a list of words makes compelling reading?

Simon: Don't be so hard on yourself, actually I am compelled. When's the wedding day?

DE: Not long, now. We're actually getting married on the set of that film 'Chicken Run'...

Simon: Can I come?

DE: Yes, if you come dressed as a chicken or an egg.

Simon: Will the priest be dressed the same way?

DE: The priest IS an egg...

Simon: See, that's compelling reading!

DE: You really think so?

Simon: Yeah! You wouldn't know it because you're an egg, but other people find you really interesting!

DE: Oh...

Simon: Let's continue.

Simon: Roughly one in 30!

DE: Ooo.

Simon: It is ooo, actually. It's not as rare as this situation with you being an egg, but what is? Other than the wedding, I mean.

DE: What's strange about an egg wedding? Are you suggesting only people can get married?

Simon: I'm sure there are lots of people who want to marry the beautiful egg, but most eggs just aren't interested in that kind of thing. Most are happy just chilling out in boxes with their friends and family.

DE: Yeah? Well we still have lives.

Simon: Of course. Now let's move on!
