

Simon: Hello! Heard any cover songs recently?

Simon: Yes, I heard a death metal cover of Black Sabbath song 'Symptom of the universe'. Hearing the words 'all I have to give you is a love that never dies' shouted didn't really work for me...

Simon: A death metal love song?

Simon: Yep. On the plus side, I wouldn't describe the cover as brutal death, though.

Simon: If that's brutal, what's sentimental music like??

Simon: All I have to give you is kittens wrapped in love?

Simon: No, that's too far.

Simon: Agreed. Speaking of romance, I saw an advert about long time nemesis artificial intelligence. Apparently A.I. writing tools can make your writing professional, humorous, romantic, etc. Very handy. But what if you get professional and romantic mixed up?

Simon: Oh no...

Simon: It would be like 'Dear, sweetest Mr. Smith. I am inquiring about how my job interview went. Much love and kisses. Regards, Simon.'

Simon: What would the funny version be like?

Simon: Maybe 'Hiya Mr. Smith, lol! How'd did my job interview go, lol? In the meantime, here's a joke about bees...'

Simon: A.I. gone wrong.

Simon: Oh very much so. Which is good, because A.I. is my nemesis.

Simon: And any other comments on working in general?

Simon: On LinkedIn, I read 'tutor roles' as Tudor roles. I was thinking that's a very specific job they're hiring for. I guess the teachings of Henry VIII would be valued. A very wise man, if arrogant.

Simon: Let's just hope he doesn't kill all of his wives.

Simon: Oh God, what have you done now, Henry?

Simon: Too far.

Simon: Right. Still though, when it comes to organisational skills, pay attention.

Simon: And any opinions on roads?

Simon: There's a road sign near where I live saying 'expect delays and careys'. What like Jim Carey? What do you mean?? Time for some research... Google says Carey means 'dark; black' it's a name for a boy or girl.

Simon: Expect people called Carey?

Simon: Yep, either male or female, apparently.

Simon: But why?

Simon: Yep, that's the whole mystery, isn't it? There's only so much Google can do.

Simon: :(

Simon: Also, there seem to be road works all the time! Build proper roads! Sure I'd complain if there were potholes caused by a lack of road works, but why not make roads of ultra durable stainless steel?

Simon: Then the roads would be super slippery...

Simon: Yes, more fun!

Simon: Ohhh yeah.

Simon: However, I do admit to being confused by some methods of transport...

Simon: Nooo.

Simon: Yes, I read that a passenger plane had to return home after crack was found on the glass. What like crack cocaine? That's a weird story. Then I read again and it said 'A crack was found' which is very different obviously.

Simon: It would be even weirder if crack cocaine was found on the outside of the glass. How did it get there and why??

Simon: Drugged up birds. :S

Simon: Either that or drug addicts climbing on planes, but how would that happen?? Weirdly, drugged up birds make more sense...

Simon: It can't rain drugs can it?

Simon: Nope.

Simon: Oh good.

Simon: Ever been confused by what's on TV?

Simon: Very recently I saw a channel 3 program advertised on channel 4! At least I think I did... Are we living in a time where rival companies try to help each other? That's strange. A nice thought, though.

Simon: Awesome, and have you seen any strange TV programs?

Simon: I was watching Silent Witness and someone assaulted a police officer and nothing happened to the offender! I was thinking to myself 'did I just imagine that?' Then I thought 'no, maybe he'll get arrested later...' Nope. Having thought more, maybe I did miss-view, I don't know. I don't think I did, though. It's like hearing the queen calling someone an asshole, you're just stunned. And the soundtrack of SW is so over the top it's borderline screaming, the opera singer basically goes AAAAAARGGHH!!!! To be clear, if I'm mistaken I apologise, but that's what it looked like to me.

Simon: Wow...

Simon: I did some Googling and another viewer complained how only five people in the show worked on the case of an assassinated cabinet minister, and how the five took on the roles of multiple professionals...

Simon: Wow, a team of just five people? They must have worked hard on the case?

Simon: Apparently they had enough time for relationships and other cases...

Simon: Other cases? Is it just the five policing the whole city??

Simon: No. Surely not.

Simon: Possibly?

Simon: Maybe, yeah.

Simon: Ok. Done any tricks with water bottles?

Simon: I have actually. In the gym I dropped my bottle on the floor (on purpose, I'm too much of a busy person to place things down), it bounced up and landed upright! Super cool, I've actually done that twice!

Simon: Did anyone see?

Simon: It might have been seen on CCTV at least. I have noticed cameras in the working out area, but I don't really think they're necessary. Never seen a crime there, once. Stealing the equipment would be next to impossible. You'd have to put the apparatus on wheels, smash through the walls, because the doors aren't wide enough, and put the stuff inside a jeep. Without being noticed? Come on. You could manage one or two dumbbells, but ever heard of dumbbell theft?? And even if it WAS a thing, the price of the cameras is so much more than the weights, so they're not cost effective.

Simon: Excellent rant. And seen any more weird Youtube subtitles?

Simon: I've seen some words saying 'applause' actually it was the sound of wind. That's significant because if there was a serious storm and buildings were blown down, the subtitles could say applause to that too, which would be inappropriate. Subtitles also said 'foreign' when someone moaned which isn't true, all nationalities can moan.

Simon: And any thoughts on medical conditions?

Simon: Bibliophiles love books, javaphiles love coffee, etc., so does that mean haemophiliacs love to bleed? I'm just saying haemo does mean blood. The misunderstanding is bad now, but it would have been worse in the past with the lack of medical understanding. An ancient patient would be bleeding heavily, the medics would be told he's a haemophiliac and then they would be like 'ohhhhh, there's nothing wrong with him he loves to bleed!' Poor guy.

Simon: And any more thoughts on soft drinks?

Simon: It's funny you should say that, there have been lots of coincidences, today!

Simon: :)

Simon: So, soft drinks have tons of acid in them and 'acidity regulator' too? What's the point of that? So the drinks have acid and I guess anti acid 'regulators' to cancel the corrosive substances out? Why not save time and have no acid at all?

Simon: Agreed. You wouldn't put salt in food to make it bitter, then add sugar to cancel out the salt!

Simon: Right, and not only that, I've just done some Googling and acidity regulators INCREASE the acid amounts! THAT'S a lot of acid.

Simon: You might as well just drink battery acid!

Simon: What's soft about that?

Simon: That has to be one of the craziest things ever?

Simon: Things get crazier. I once read on Google that Yngwie Malmsteen plays J pop! That has since been corrected.

Simon: Thank God for that...

Simon: Yes, and thinking about the guitarist inspired me to write a joke, which is even better!

Simon: Go on.

Simon: What did Yngwie Malmsteen's ancestor ride to battle?

Simon: What?

Simon: A Yngwie Malmsteed.

Simon: A thumbs up to that.

Simon: Thank you. I Googled if that joke was original and it seems other people called Mr. Malmsteen 'Malmsteed' by mistake. It actually happened quite a lot. :O

Simon: And back to Youtube?

Simon: On Youtube a cop said 'you're being arrested for resisting without violence' which implies the person being arrested should have been violent.

Simon: A lawyer defending the criminal could point out the cop was being very confusing. That would have been very disorientating for the crook, making him behave erratically.

Simon: There you go. Justice served and a boost to your reputation as well!

Simon: Seen any flies?

Simon: I noticed a fly on my desk and it stopped moving when I looked at it. I was thinking 'no I'm not going to kill you', then it moved again. Then it stopped and I thought 'no really, it wouldn't be worth my time or effort' then it moved again! Psychic fly! I then noticed how it washed itself, as apparently flies find people disgusting. I then thought 'actually maybe I should kill you.' Then it stopped moving again. I didn't kill the fly though. Would the fly care about me? Of course not, so how is it me that's being disgusting? I'm genuinely annoyed. Hypocrite.

Simon: I don't like flies, either.

Simon: Right, you wouldn't put up with it in a person.

Simon: And any thoughts on diet?

Simon: I heard the ketogenic diet can improve schizophrenia. It's worth noting that schizophrenia is caused by too much dopamine in the brain, and dopamine is the happiness drug. I'm wondering if the diet is good for you because it tastes horrible and reduces dopamine levels.

Simon: Having done some Googling, it seems that actually the ketogenic diet DOES reduce dopamine!

Simon: Because it's horrible?

Simon: Errr... The article was written in a very complicated way. I guess you need to be a doctor or whatever to understand it... The words 'metabolites' 'biogenic' AND 'amines' were mentioned. Any clues?

Simon: Oh. Not really.

Simon: And on that confusing note, bye?

Simon: Yes, bye!
