

Nothing to Say :(

Simon: So, Simon. Anything on your mind?

Simon: No...

Simon: Ah. That's a problem.

Simon: Yes, it's a huge problem in an interview.

Simon: Nothing at all?

Simon: Nope.

Simon: Huh. Nothing interesting happen to you?

Simon: Sorry...

Simon: Are you looking forward to anything?

Simon: I'm looking forward to gyms reopening, next week.

Simon: Great! Please talk about that.

Simon: I kinda want to save that stuff for a future blog.

Simon: I'm sure it will be very fascinating. Going to the gym again. How about that.

Simon: Yes, it will be.

Simon: Can you explain why?

Simon: It will be different. I'll have to book exercising sessions online before hand, for one thing.

Simon: Booking sessions online. Jesus.

Simon: Excuse me?

Simon: Maybe you can talk about how there will less people there.

Simon: Yes, I will.

Simon: And all the hand washing.

Simon: I will actually.

Simon: Doesn't that sound dumb to you?

Simon: Do you want me to do more interesting activities?

Simon: Yes!

Simon: Like what?

Simon: Rob a bank!

Simon: What??

Simon: You heard.

Simon: You're scaring me!

Simon: Good.

Simon: Why are you doing this?

Simon: Because your life's too boring. You need to write more out-there material.

Simon: It wouldn't be funny though! It would just be upsetting!

Simon: It would be funny to me.

Simon: Can I stop talking to you, please?

Simon: Try. It's impossible.

Simon: Oh yeah.

Simon: Now go and get a banana and hide it under your shirt.

Simon: Jesus!

Simon: No, only joking.

Simon: Really??

Simon: Sure!

Simon: Oh good.

Simon: Now, want to talk about something more interesting than going to the gym again?

Simon: I kind of want to go somewhere and hide.

Simon: I told you I was joking.

Simon: Well, to be sure I've just eaten my only banana. The robbery can't possibly happen, now.

Simon: Your brother has a BB gun.

Simon: Please!

Simon: Ok, ok, ok. How about talking about how you'll get a curry, later?

Simon: Is that more interesting than going to the gym?

Simon: It's more fun...

Simon: That wasn't my question.

Simon: Ok, you've outsmarted me.

Simon: That wasn't hard. You're a loon!

Simon: I say ONE recurring joke about getting a fake gun and threatening people, and it affects me for the rest of my life.

Simon: It should do.

Simon: You know what? I don't want to talk to YOU.

Simon: Good. Bye then.

Simon: ...