

Simon 1: Hello, you recently gave 'Off the Wall' by Michael Jackson a 9.9/10 rating. Do you stand by that?

Simon 2: Maybe. On the other hand maybe that was a bit high, I certainly liked it on first listen, though! It definitely deserves at least a 9.75/10.

Simon 1: I was going to say, 9.9 for such an album doesn't sound like you...

Simon 2: Right, too soft sounding.

Simon 1: I understand. So what do you think of Bjork's album 'Debut'? That's really girly!

Simon 2: I'd give that 9.9/10. 'Post' is good, too. Not only that, the artwork is largely pink.

Simon 1: I don't understand...

Simon 2: Nope, be neither.

Simon 1: Any ideas?

Simon 2: Nope. It's not the kind of music you want to blast out loud. Gets me in the feels, though.

Simon 1: What genre of music is it?

Simon 2: A.I. says 'debut' is house, trip-hop, jazz and dance music. I think any sex can listen to that. However, it also says 'Post' is, and I quote '(expletive) wussy! :S'

Simon 1: It really said that? Along with the face?

Simon 2: I assumed.

Simon 1: It's just that... well, it's a rather serious allegation against a respected search engine...

Simon 2: Here comes apology 63, I guess...

Simon 1: Right. A.I. does not generate filth.

Simon 2: Valid, descriptive and concise filth.

Simon 1: Fair enough. It would be even more concise if it simply said ':S'.

Simon 2: Maybe a bit vague. The reader would be like '... something is wrong, but what?' Of course WE know the music is suss because of dumb lyrics like 'love, sweet love'.

Simon 1: That's Status Quo...

Simon 2: Is it?

Simon 1: Yep, From the album 'Hello!'

Simon 2: Wow. That's one friendly album...

Simon 1: Yes, especially as 'hello' is shouted...

Simon 2: HELLO! LOVE, SWEET LOVE!

Simon 1: Well don't shout all of it, it sounds creepy, if not aggressive...

Simon 2: Interestingly Post could do with being a more aggressive album... I say it should be screamed from start to finish.

Simon 1: What does A.I. really say about Post? Please, no lies - I'd believe them.

Simon 2: It says it's art pop!

Simon 1: But all music is art...

Simon 2: In that case, Post is pop.

Simon 1: But Post isn't post pop, as post pop is a different genre...

Simon 2: The world of music is a confusing place.

Simon 1: You mentioned in your last interview that A.I. came up with an interview title for you. Has it done the same thing again?

Simon 2: Yep.

Simon 1: What has it suggested?

Simon 2: Michael Jackson and Bjork Album Ratings.

Simon 1: Wow. That's creative.

Simon 2: Yeah, not really. Which is why I think my title 'Another Interview Woopwoo' is better.

Simon 1: It gets you pumped...

Simon 2: Yeah, A.I. didn't get me pumped at all. It was informative at least...

Simon 1: Maybe A.I. in this case stands for 'Artificial Informativeness'...

Simon 2: Then I have no right to complain.

Simon 1: And what other musical topics have confused you?

Simon 2: How did you know?

Simon 1: I presumed.

Simon 2: Ok, there is a song by Rammstein called 'Alter Mann' (or Old Man), that is apparently about someone passing down wisdom from one generation to the next. However, why do so in a way that's so vague and poetic, like in the track? It's just that if I wanted instructions from other people, I'd want them to be as clear as possible. I wouldn't want anyone to say to me 'the water shall be your guide. Only when it is smooth will you see how much fairy tale is left for you, and you will plead for salvation :(like in the song. Anything could happen.

Simon 1: Like?

Simon 2: Well, maybe I could think the old man meant mirrors are literally made from water, then I obsessively polish it to make it as smooth as possible. Then I tell others to do the same, otherwise they'll need to plead for salvation, just like me.

Simon 1: And have any other songs confused you?

Simon 2: Speaking of Rammstein again, their song 'Sonne' (or Sun) goes 'Everyone is waiting for the light. Be afraid, don't be afraid. The sun is shining out of my eyes, it will not set tonight.' Apparently it's about a boxer... Let's be real, at first I thought it was about the sun.

Simon 1: What's 'be afraid, don't be afraid' mean?

Simon 2: It means nothing. Again, it's useless advice that will only lead to chaos if not insanity.

Simon 1: Did you know people with schizotypal personality disorder often speak in metaphorical ways? Maybe that's what the old man was suffering from.

Simon 2: Yes, but why listen to him when SPD is a milder version of schizophrenia?

Simon 1: Better than listening to you when you had schizophrenia...

Simon 2: That was cold.

Simon 1: True though.

Simon 2: Yes it was true, but you shouldn't say it.

Simon 1: Ok, maybe you should talk about pizza, instead.

Simon 2: I have a great pizza anecdote, actually.

Simon 1: Go on...

Simon 2: Pizza backwards looks like the number 62219, I noticed that in the mirror of a pizza shop. So when I call myself 'Simon 62219', you'll know what it means.

Simon 1: You could assume that's the amount of pizzas you've eaten...

Simon 2: Types of pizzas, maybe.

Simon 1: How many pizzas altogether, then?

Simon 2: Oh billions, billions.

Simon 1: Wow. But please don't talk about pizza again for a while.

Simon 2: You told me to!

Simon 1: Yes and it was a mistake. Speaking of mistakes, have you got any other funny mishearings?

Simon 2: Yep, someone said 'imagine my shock' but the subtitles said 'imagine my shark'.

Simon 1: And what would the point of that be?

Simon 2: Maybe the animal is very impressive?

Simon 1: If it's so impressive, why didn't the guy show the other person a photo?

Simon 2: Maybe because it's illegal keeping sharks?

Simon 1: Ok, but if it's so illegal, why mention the shark at all?

Simon 2: He could be a trusted friend!

Simon 1: A very trusted friend.

Simon 2: Right.

Simon 1: And would you like to end this interview with some advice?

Simon 2: Seconds seem to last longer on a clock if you see 100ths of a second counting down as well, so that's something to keep in mind if you want your life to feel like it lasts longer. If you want to prolong happy experiences (for example Laser Quest) why not have huge timers counting down on the ceiling?

Simon 1: That SOUNDS like a good idea, but if you have clocks with MILLIONTHS of seconds showing, that could really make time seem slower. Then time bends along with space and the universe gets destroyed.

Simon 2: All I wanted to do was make Laser Quest seem longer...

Simon 1: I know, but you failed.

Simon 2: Ban special clocks, I guess.

Simon 1: Right, that's something you want to be clear about.

Simon 2: Yes, let's not say that poetically. As in 'let the mega time keeper go the same way as the dinosaurs'.

Simon 1: It is an interesting idea for a song, though...

Simon 2: Great, bye!