

Today I'll be reviewing 'Evilized' by Dream Evil! Evilized seems to be a made up word according to my spellchecker at least, but I can guess what the band meant by that. I think it means 'to turn someone evil'. They dream about evil, they turn people evil and love evil so much, they felt the need to invent a word seemingly describing their passion for evil. Needless to say, these people are going straight to Hell. Most people would say things like 'there is more to life than money', meaning things like go karting for free because of a birthday is better than money, these guys seem to think evil is better than that! Insanity! If I was God I'd be so mad at them!! Are these the conversations these people have: 'What would you like for your birthday, son?' 'Evil'. It would be at that point God would be really seething. Preferring fun, costless outings over Satanism sounds wiser to me and a hell of a lot more friendly. ME preferring evil over free go karting? Why?? Maybe my computer could break again. In that situation maybe I'd go mad and would prefer evil over go karting. I'd just be like 'Nope, I'm fed up, even after the drive. Now let's try and get a free burger on the way home, too.' Not massively evil, but it is greed.

I'm still wondering what the band are getting out of turning people evil. I hate to sound like I'm oversimplifying things, but to be as clear as possible, I guess some people for whatever reason, just love evil. But maybe not! As the band made up the word, it could really mean anything. I could make up a word called 'Simonize' which apparently means 'turn people into me'. No, I came up with the word so I choose its meaning. It actually means to drink a cool and refreshing glass of water. Who knows, maybe Dream Evil are just as baffling and maybe they simply and harmlessly love water. But why make a whole album about that fact? A metal band obsessed with water? Call me close minded, but sounds really dumb. Metallica wrote a song about drug addiction called 'Master of Puppets' that goes 'obey your master, master!' I'm picturing DE singing 'Now drink your water, water!' Again, sounds dumb. Metallica also have a song that goes 'take my hand, off to never never land!' DE would be like 'take my hand, off to water water land!' You've sang about water before, it's getting old! It was even weird the first time around! This is NOT good lyric writing!

Hang on... me suggesting Evilized means a love of water? I should point out that that sounds dumb as well. Otherwise people could say 'you love water, huh? You must be evilized' and all the poor and traumatised person was trying to do was stay hydrated. Me being responsible for countless confused people being thirsty, just so they don't go the Hell? THAT would make me evil. Impossible to justify, right? It would be absolutely inexcusable if I acted that way because my computer broke. I could try to justify it, but really I'd just dig myself deeper and deeper. I'd just be like 'Look, I was stressed that's all. So I decided to make the whole world thirsty so they don't get damned. Am I REALLY in the wrong?' Yes, I would be in the wrong. I'd be nonsensical too, I'd have to be seriously clever if I could find a way of talking myself out of psychiatric hospitalisation. Anyway, despite my apparent hate - pathological hate even - on Dream Evil, I actually like their album! It's not a particularly evil sounding album, far from it, but that's nowhere near as confusing as my prior writing, so who is anyone to judge the band?? Let's give Evilized 8.75/10! Bye!