I've just finished writing a short story! Tiring stuff. I'm not in the clear yet though, as I want to write a special Christmassy story too. In the meantime… time to at least partially relax with some more random words from worst to best! The word generator has done a lot of the work for me, so thank you generator. Will I be doing anything different this random monologue? Nope. Have I said something similar before? I think so, yes. Have I said that before as well? Quite possibly. Right intro over, let's goooo!

Cousin

Cousin has come up in the random word generator again. Well, my cousins still suck. They've got even worse in fact, as now they're in very last place. Luckily one such relative is all the way in America. I can only pray my other cousin misses the now American so much she moves to see him. Birds of a feather flock together, yet my cousin still can't find a reason to move to the USA? Well maybe they're different to each other even though related? But opposites attract! Take note of the two sayings and move!

Accident

There are small accidents, there are big accidents. There are happy accidents too, such as slipping on a banana skin making the skin fly in the mouth of a ranting tramp scaring everyone, making him be quiet, and finally resulting in you being a hero who is agreed should receive a million pound prize. Unlikely but it could happen, which is why technically speaking, accidents are better than my cousins.

Forbid

I guess some things are forbidden for a reason (e.g. robbing a bank, stealing a car and crashing into a police station) but why forbid me from trespassing on privately owned land? That only adds to the mystique and makes me want to trespass more! It doesn't make me want to rob a bank, etc. more though which is something. Focus on the positives even though small and be a happier person, I think.

Pollution

Pollution has a bad reputation, but did you know it makes better, more colourful sunsets? You know what else is good about pollution? Successfully burnt fuel and easy to dispose of litter.

Mutter

Speak up! I can't hear you! Mutter is a good Rammstein album though, but I think mutter in German means 'mother'. Could be a coincidence. Do mums mutter more than most people? Actually my mum was a very quiet person, so there you go.

Principle

Another word for headmaster. 'Principle' has another meaning, but having Googled it I found the explanation confusing and I don't feel in the know enough to rank the word. So yeah, how do I rate headmasters instead? I did like my primary school headmaster and his stories of learning to swim at the age of 18, and him being an excellent marksman even though he had poor vision at the time that wasn't corrected, but my secondary school headmaster? I was kind of indifferent to him. He just didn't have the same level of anecdotes, in my opinion.

Mechanism

Another word that's kind of hard to fully understand. It sounds cool, though. It sounds very high tech. Intriguing. With the intrigue comes fear however. Will I be able to work the hypothetical mechanism, or will I fail and get everyone covered in paint? Remember paintball guns have mechanisms, too. Real guns also have mechanisms. You better pray you understand those.

Regard

A word I'm rather indifferent to. I regard the word as neutral. Not potentially dangerous or at least silly like the above, just a tool you can use in writing every now and then. It makes a very good end to a polite message, i.e. 'Best regards, Simon.' Imagine getting the best of something. Sadly I don't I've ever really meant it.

Variant

Some variants are good (ice cream with chocolate sauce/strawberry sauce, etc.) others are somewhat darker, even bad (the Coronavirus). However, the word doesn't do too badly because I've been told the coronavirus is less threatening than the flu now. Not so tough now are you?

Miss

Those familiar with game theory will love this word. I'm just saying in the theory if you are a gunman and there are two other gunmen what's the best thing you can do? Shoot the other people? Nope, you miss. Or something like that. It's been a few years since I've heard the explanation, and consequently things may have been distorted over time. I on the other hand will probably never need to use the theory. I simply can't picture how I'd end up with gun and with two other armed men. Just why??

Herd

I don't really like cows very much, I guess it's a clash of personalities. I certainly don't like herds of them. I do however, like cow milk in breakfasts which is an excellent and tasty source of calcium. Thanks cows. And thanks for letting me eat you.

Equal

I suppose it would be good in a way if everyone was equal, but my God would all contests be extremely boring. The Eurovision Song Contest ruined, Formula One ruined, etc. I wonder how you'd count if everything was equal, would there only be one number? I'm just saying if the concepts of less and more don't exist, what the flip would happen to the world of maths? But on the plus side, happy people free of jealousy. Even if living in chaos.

Advocate

A person who supports a cause? I want an advocate supporting me! However, would I want someone who agrees with everything I say, or would I want someone who tells me when I've done/said something wrong? It isn't always clear to me.

Performer

Now we're getting fun. It will obviously be offensive to my cousins how performers are apparently much better than them. They could be performers I suppose, but they'd be limited to singing sad pop songs about how much they suck.

Veteran

You have to respect veterans, don't you? Imagine someone coming home from a war and them being treated as less important than a herd of animals, someone muttering, etc. Awful. So veterans win this random word mega ridiculous monologue!

Final thoughts? To be honest, I kinda put principle, mechanism, regard, variant AND miss in a more or less random order. Do I really like missing things and game theory that much? I don't know. I guess I could stand by and do nothing as two people shot each other… No. Too far, that was cold. In that case maybe put miss back a little? Hm. Right all done that'll do, bye!