

Hello! Here are twelve more random words ranked for you. Nothing fancy, nothing different, just some website filler basically. Let's go!

In last place is...

Inappropriate

I have behaved in a way that was considered unacceptable whilst working, for example by rapping and teaching people how to play quintuplets with their hands, but it certainly didn't get me anywhere, that's for sure. Well I'm not sure if I ever RAPPED, but yeah, that kind of thing. Very strange when I supposed to be checking if everyone was ok in a day care centre.

Abnormal

I don't really care if something is abnormal. However, does THAT get me anywhere? It does generate blog material, but deep down I'd much rather blog about things such as living life to the max on a ferry, where everyone is having a superb time. Not washing my car or going mad.

Lineage

Most people would love to know what their ancestors were like. However, my case is a bit different because judging by family photos alone, there isn't anything to be too excited about. Sadly many of my relatives look mental. I guess part of me would like to know why they were mental and how that manifested, but it's the same curiosity I have for strange conditions where people believe they are dead, or that others are clones. There is one kind-faced family member hanging on a wall, but maybe he was just caught in a good mood, or was on mellowing drugs.

Continuous

Continuous what? Could be anything, could be bad, could be good. Then again, even continuous good things get boring, so on second thoughts, let's put this word low down. Not as bad as my crazy eyed great grandmother, though.

Ghost

I've never had a problem with a ghost, but have you ever heard of a ghost doing a nice thing? Maybe that's because they can't be seen. Would I do nice things to others if I was invisible? No, I'd make the most out of the situation, obviously.

Ribbon

Ribbons are nice, I guess. I don't like them enough to wear them, though. Where would I put them? On my hair? My sleeves? Think of one good place you can wear them without getting laughed at. Maybe the neck is the best place, but even then, I'd feel odd. Again, I've blogged about washing my car. Imagine if someone knocked on your door offering to wash your car for money and he had a ribbon on his neck or hair, or whatever. How would you react? You'd tell him to leave, trying to be as calm as possible.

Paint

I can't paint well, but I do like the thought of painting well. I was good at art as a ten year old, but sadly my skills have never developed and I still draw/etc. with the skill of an above average ten year old. Which is depressing, really. Similarly, I've never learnt any French other than how to say 'Hello, my name is Simon.' I used to be able to say where I live, but I forgot. I presume the main reason someone would need to speak French is an emergency and yeah, all I could say is 'I'm Simon, I'm from England.'

Map

I would rank maps higher, but there not so useful to me as I find it hard reading them. If Satnav was a word that was generated, it could well take the top spot.

Minimum

Doing the minimum sounds pretty good to me. Let's do it now.

Exotic

Curries are exotic, Chinese food is exotic and to a lesser extent, I guess Italian food is exotic too. Here's something that isn't exotic: Fish and chips. Not quite as good, is it? Having said that, English music is famous for being the best in the world by far, no question. :O England has music, Italy has food.

Trip

I love trips! I don't like tripping over, but I could handle tripping over just the once, as the word above could imply. I'd definitely trip over one time in return for a trip to Disneyland as it's apparently the happiest place on Earth. You know where I assumed the happiest place on Earth was? Woodstock 1969, because of all the drugs. But apparently Disneyland is more intense than that. I'm not saying drugs are good, don't worry, but let's face it, in the short term people do like them. There are some people who don't even like the short term effects, which is a strange thing to risk your life over. I mean what crazy person says to himself 'I'm going to risk going to jail so I can make myself feel a lot worse for a while. I may even die.' He sounds miserable.

Anticipation

Ah, anticipation. You know what I'd like to anticipate? Going to Disneyland. I'm sure it's not filled with drug addicts, it's probably the happiest place on Earth because of all the rollercoasters. And of course, it should be pointed out that drug addicts actually have bad lives and certainly not among the happiest in the world.

Right! I think that list was at least relatively normal, especially with abnormal being so low down. Yeah, I think I'm happy with that. It suggests I have an irrational hatred of ribbons, but it really isn't true, It's just that I think they look silly. :) Bye!