

There are lots of types of car in the world, and I'm sure you THINK you know most of them. Think again. Sure I don't know a lot of about the subject, so the following may sound a little uneducated at times, but the important thing is I know what cars are. (Right???) If I didn't know that, fair enough, you should stop reading. (Right?) Anyway, let's go!!!

Sedan

First up, I will discuss sedans! So called because they come from Sudan and someone made a spelling error? Who knows? Let's do some Googling. Well, there's a song called Sudan Sedan, but the lyrics are very hard to decipher, so they can't really help me. Something like 'Hey, hey, are you, stuck up?' Listen to the song on Youtube to see if you can do any better. They're the only lyrics, so maybe the song actually has nothing to do with cars, the title just sounds catchy. Unless of course Sudanese Sedan drivers ARE stuck up??

Hatchback

I THINK I drive a hatchback. I wish I didn't, though. You'd think I'd have a lot to say about the cars as (I think) I drive one, but all I can say is that they're really slow.

Convertible

I recently saw a woman driving a convertible at night in the freezing cold, with the roof down. Needless to say she looked mental. My mum drove a convertible. Just saying.

Sports car

Mmm. I'd like a sports car. Not so much to drive, but to look at. Hm... I can just look at someone else's sports car if I don't want to drive one... Bangin'.

Van

My dad owns a van. But who are crazier? Van drivers or convertible drivers? It may be controversial, but that's the kind of TV show I'd watch. Oh, it's ok to watch prison documentaries, but not Simon Wiedemann's 'mental contests'? Hypocrites.

Off road vehicle

If you own an off road vehicle and you live in an inner city, you're mad too, but it does happen. I picture such people saying things like 'I'm not fantasising about living in the countryside, actually. What I'd really like to do is drive on people's front gardens, speed away and get away with it.'

Limo

I don't like parking even small cars (hatchbacks, apparently), so limos can go screw themselves. However, I don't think I've ever seen a parking space for a limo, not in a typical car park, anyway. I can only imagine the rage eccentric business tycoons must be feeling. How are they going to drive and let their passengers swim in swimming pools, now? Grr.

Super car

Here's a thought: How come people get excited about super cars, yet if someone says they're 'feeling super' or even better 'super duper' they sound lame? Let's make the word 'super' ALWAYS hip. Luckily as I've been described as 'effortlessly cool', maybe I could make 'super' super, once and for all. Anyway, what's the point of owning a super car if you can't race one? They LOOK good, but are the hundreds of horse power really necessary? I think my idea of an affordable normal-performance car that looks like a Ferrari is really good and NOT pretentious. I'm so excited by the concept, I've mentioned it once before. :O

Muscle car

Apparently Arnold Schwarzenegger drives a Hummer and Sylvester Stallone drives a Bentley. Hm. I guess the two don't need any more muscles. Maybe that's what it is.

Motorbike

Surely motorbikes aren't cars? Well, I Googled types of cars and motorbikes were in the list, so turns out they are. Half of what you learn in life will be false, explaining my misunderstanding that I've had since maybe two or three years old. It's like goldfish - actually they don't have three second memories!

Classic car

Most of the people who drive cars from the 50s or earlier were severely neglected in childhood, I'm sure.

Bus

Apparently busses are cars, too. Let's just check the definition of 'car': 'A four-wheeled road vehicle that is powered by an engine and is able to carry a small number of people.' Well... buses DO have four wheels (by that I mean, if you have you say ten, you also have four), and 20 or so people IS a small number when compared to any large number. Buses are cars!

Truck

I guess trucks are massive cars?? I wonder if busses are trucks, too?

Pickup truck

A cross between a truck and an electric guitar.

Hybrid car

I thought a pickup truck was a hybrid car.

Family car

Finally, a family car! I hate those anti-family cars.

Full size car

You mean trucks aren't full size. Ooooh. :O

Microcar

Another product of child neglect. Thank God the one I'm looking at (the Peel P50) can only go 38 mph. Any faster, and it would probably fall apart. Seeing such a vehicle go 100 mph would be quite the spectacle, however.

Economy car

What bankers drive.

Self-driving car

In a scenario where there is a small group of people and a large group of people, I believe self-driving cars are programmed to crash into the former if everything goes to hell. If AI is so clever, crash into a fence. Even better, just stop. Why put so much effort into computer programming, when all you need is an effective break?

Ok! There are a number of cars described for you! Some were silly, some were excessive, others were downright baffling. Not a lot else to say, really. Let's just end on this deep thought: Are trains cars?? :S Bye!
