

Dan: Hello, listeners! This time the podcast will be special, because we have THREE criminals here! First up is the fraudulent joyrider that is James...

James: Hi. And of course, I'm a vandal too. :)

Dan: We have the violent alcoholic that is the Dominant Egg, AKA Charlie Baldwin...

DE: Good to see you. I also run a pyramid scheme.

Dan: AND we have the fraudulent, vandal joyrider who calls himself 'the enforcing Santa'.

ES: And of course my real name is Joseph Zibbleton.

Dan: That's interesting. It's also funny that you sound exactly the same as James and look like him, too! Not only that, you are sitting in exactly the same place! What's your full name?

ES: Joseph Ibble Zibble Zibbleton.

Dan: Oh God...

ES: I admit they're not the greatest initials in the world, but J and Z are obscure letters and I take comfort in that.

James: For me it's a pain that never ends.

ES: Yeah me too, actually. Kinda makes me angry.

James: Oh I know. We're very similar, by the way. I never dressed up as Father Christmas, but I impersonated a teacher and that didn't go too well, either.

DE: I'm seeing this kind of behaviour more and more these days... Sad really.

James: Coming from you??

(A zooming sound is heard, followed by a thud)

James: He's flown into my nose!

Ben: You really do need to control yourself better, Mr. Baldwin...

ES: He hit me, too!

Ben: Yes, I really should point out how Joe Zibbleton and James Ziegler are actually the same people. This is what happens when people give him caffeine... I do feel bad you know?

James: For what?

Ben: Waiting for you to speak and open your mouth and then throwing coffee beans into your mouth...

James: I'm feeling perfectly fine.

ES: Me too.

Ben: You're not well, James.

James: Yes I am. Fantastic.

Ben: You're not feeling any anxiety?

James: Maybe a little. Maybe I worry I'll never find any kind of real work.

ES: Me too.

James: I applied to be a teacher the other day, I learnt my lesson and didn't insist on being a teacher and I didn't do any breaking and entering, but not even that worked. I don't know what to do!

Dan: This is really creepy...

DE: I'm waiting for the time Joe and James start arguing with each other...

James: That time is now.

ES: Asshole.

James: Bellend.

Dan: Is there a reason for this argument?

ES: Nope.

James: I have a reason, he called me an asshole!

Dan: But you're the same people!

James: Are you calling me Santa?

Dan: No...

James: Well there you go.

Dan: Of course. I apologise.

Ben: I think we could take things further...

Dan: What do you mean?

Ben: I still have loads of coffee beans in my pocket.

James: Don't you dare throw more coffee in my mouth! Don't you d...

(James starts coughing)

Ben: Bingo.

DE: While we wait for the coffee to take effect, would you like to say what you put on your teacher application form?

James: Yes. Hobbies and interests: Judging others.

DE: Wow, and you still got an interview?

James: Sure. Judging others is an essential skill in schools...

DE: Ah. The interviewer must have assumed you meant judging naughty people. Or testing the students.

James: No, no, judging everyone by calling them turds.

DE: Everyone? Even harmless old ladies?

James: Yes, no one is safe.

ES: You're an asshole, James.

DE: Just ignore him.

James: Will do. On the form, I also said I loved getting into arguments with people. I'm assuming the employers were thinking I meant intellectual arguments, which was another fallacy.

DE: Do you have any more hobbies you'd like to share?

James: I also said I'm clinically insane...

DE: Ah, a great sense of humour. That's how it was taken. That's what you meant, right? You were joking?

James: Yeahhh...

Ben: You didn't really write that did you?

James: Best to get the negatives out of the way...

Dan: How is being insane a hobby?

James: Whoops.

Dan: I have to say your application form sounds absolutely abysmal...

James: Well, people are desperate for teachers nowadays.

Dan: What has happened to the education system?

James: I know! They made a mistake not hiring me, but I'm sure Santa here will approach things from the right angle... If he wants to be a teacher, I mean. The asshole Santa.

ES: I'd be a great teacher, I give presents to people because I'm kind!

Dan: Yes, I heard about those presents. A slice of ham and a spade?

ES: Thoughtful stuff.

Dan: How were they thoughtful gifts?

ES: In case they wanted to bury the ham...

Ben: Is the coffee kicking in now, James?

James: No.

Ben: Are you sure? You seem to be following someone around the room with your eyes. Someone who isn't there...

James: You mean the Enforcing Easter Bunny?

Bunny: Hello James. I'm the Enforcing Easter Bunny and I looove chocolate eggs!

Ben: James, you just said that to yourself.

James: No, that was the bunny.

Ben: What does he do to enforce things?

Bunny: I turn people into eggs.

Ben: Wow... Did the Dominant Egg used to be a man before he was attacked by the bunny?

James: That's... an interesting thought...

DE: Stop looking at me like that, James. You're scaring me.

James: Are you a chocolate egg, Mr. Baldwin? I admit it, I don't know what's going on right now.

DE: No...

Ben: For the listeners, James has put the Dominant Egg in his mouth...

DE: I can't breathe!

Dan: What are you doing, James?

(James coughs)

Ben: Well done. Cough him out.

James: There you go, egg. I have to say that was the blandest chocolate I've had in my life.

DE: Do you have any idea how violated I feel?

Bunny: Hit the egg, hard. Do what the bunny says. Only that why will you become enlightened.

Dan: Now, THAT was creepy.

Bunny: Hitting the egg will transport you to the new realm.

DE: The new realm???

James: You were saying, bunny?

Bunny: A land of magic and wonder. So do it, hit the egg.

DE: Hit me and I'll kill you.

ES: Let Santa take care of him.

Bunny: No, let the bunny sort him out...

Dan: Is this really how the new year is going to start? Is this what 2024 has to offer?

Ben: James, say something positive to end the show.

James: I thought that was positive...

Dan: Right! Bye listeners!