

This interview will be a little different. In this case, I will be answering questions from fans all around the globe and beyond! Let's go!

First up, we have a question from Kevin El Spongo, from Yorkshire...

KEVIN: Hello! You joke about schizophrenia a lot. Is schizophrenia REALLY funny?

SIMON: Sure, why not.

DAVE THE KIPPER, FROM ANTARCTICA: What's your favourite colour?

SIMON: Wow you're all the way over in Antarctica?

DAVE: Yip.

SIMON: As black isn't a colour technically speaking but an absence of light, let's say very very very very VERY dark blue.

DAVE: Was that a Father Ted reference?

SIMON: Yes!

BREADTOE VII, FROM KEPLER 22 B: What would you call your band if you had one?

SIMON: Pown the Noobs.

ALICE, IN SPAINS: Can I have another fact about your uncle?

SIMON: Of course. He's never misplaced his shoes.

ZOE THE CUP HOARDER, BRAZIL: Do you get your five fruit and veg a day?

SIMON: Well I wouldn't say 'GET', that word implies I have a grudge against the foods. I certainly eat five portions of fruit a day. Not vegetables though, as they're disgusting.

KITTENS 4EVA, SECRET MARS BASE: How's the sugar addiction going?

SIMON: Up and down. What I do know is I'm not giving up Coco Pops. I think sugar in cereal is completely fine. I don't know why that is. Maybe because breakfast is the most important meal of the day, making sugar important at the same time? Again, mere speculation. Probably nonsense.

DANCE WITH THE PENGUINS, SOMEWHERE IN DENMARK: Do you feel guilty when you eat sugary foods, like chocolate?

SIMON: No...

DWTP: Some people do.

SIMON: Some people are crazy. I get vegetarians feeling guilty when eating meat, but chocolate? There is no chocolate animal, so who the flip cares? Just eat the foods and try to move on.

GRAPE FEAST, NEW YORK: What was your first experience with a fairground ride like?

SIMON: I remember when I was riding a rubbish, slow rollercoaster when I was about 6, and I was playing with two wires that were coming out of the dashboard. As I tried to tie them into a knot, they flicked into fingers and I was paralysed until the dodgy ride ended. The thing was, for about a week afterwards, I could run REALLY fast.

GRAPE: Really??

SIMON: Ok, I couldn't really run fast. But that actually happened. What kind of a ride is that?

CONSTABLE SMITH, CHARLTONHAM: If you were stuck on a desert island with a nutter, saying you can listen to only one CD, what CD would you choose?

SIMON: If I was stuck on a desert island, I'd probably be too anxious to listen to music. But maybe I'd have Slipknot to scare away predators. And of course, the nutter.

CONSTABLE MORGAN, UNDERCOVER IN SCOTLAND: What's your favourite CD?

SIMON: Still has to be White Pony, by Deftones.

TIMMY LE FROMAGE, LONDON: What's the first thing you will do when lockdown ends?

SIMON: I might get a Starbucks hot chocolate and cream, and then some shoes.

TIMMY: Wow.

SIMON: I'm not saying that's ALL I'll be doing, I also hope to go to London to watch comedy shows and stuff. But need some shoes, first.

TIMMY: Maybe you'll see me!

SIMON: London is a big place, you know?

TIMMY: No, I'm stalking you.

SIMON: Oh.

WHAT'S GOING ON?, BROADMOOR: How come grave yards are much much bigger than yards?

SIMON: I don't know what's going on either, and I share your concern. If you're into facts, a normal yard is equal to 0.9144 meters. Hope that's cheered you up.

WGO: Yes! Thanks!

SAD PAUL, ITALY: I read your previous interview. Do you really have polio? If so, is there anything I can do to make you feel better? Would you like a Curly Wurly?

SIMON: Sorry about implying that, I guess I was being careless with my writing. The only disease I have (or had) is schizophrenia.

SP: And that's funny?

SIMON: Right!

SP: Surely there were ups and downs, though?

SIMON: No, it was all funny.

SP: If you're sure...

SIMON: :D

CLOTHES BLOGGER, USA: Have you ever lost a jumper?

SIMON: You know what, I don't think I have.

EGHULPIO THE MARTIAN: What do you think of the recent robot landings on Mars, looking for life?

SIMON: I'm not optimistic about Martian life. If all that's there are amoeba-like lifeforms, who cares?

EGHULPIO: I'm not an amoeba. I have seven legs and eight brains.

SIMON: Wow...

EGHULPIO: Only joking, I'm a troll.

Ok! That's at least some of your questions answered! Learn my responses well, and I'm sure you'll ace your Simon Studies quiz! What else to say but.... Bye?!
Byeeeeeee!
