

I've just finished writing a short story and I'm super tired, so I thought I'd just review random words again. Also, I haven't done so for a while, so... the perfect storm! As the saying goes, anyway. I mean, how can a storm be perfect? Say the roof of someone's house gets blown off, who would ever say 'wow... that quite literally couldn't be better'? Now let's get going!

In last and in 15th place, is the word 'damn'!

Wow, spending the rest of time in Hell, what's worse than that? Other than maybe the cold and rock solid pizza at a local bakery I won't mention, which I could see being served in Hell. You do have to eat SOMETHING. Even stubbing your toe and shouting 'Damn!' isn't great. Here's a thought, if you do stub your toe and shout 'damn!' does that suggest the situation you're in is hell? Sounds a bit crazy, and that's why I much prefer to shout 'oh sh....!' :O

14th Elapse

Wouldn't it suck if time stood still? Imagine stubbing your toe which is bad enough, but all of a sudden time freezes and you're stuck like that forever. Maybe that WOULD be hell and the word 'damn' or the other one would be completely justified! Some call it obnoxious behaviour, I call it perfect for the situation. Even so, I did get detention. (Oh, turns out 'elapse' means the passing of time. Not sure how I made that mistake, I did Google the word... :S)

13th Loan

I've never taken out a loan and I hope I never do, as that could suggest I'm in trouble. Not to be confused with the phrase 'take out a lone', which means shoot someone with no friends. Not just an awful thing to do, but sad as well.

12th Incongruous

People who stand out from the crowd? They must be stopped. There's a phrase that goes 'hammer the nail that stands out.' The paranoid people out there may take the phrase literally and believe it means hammer people who stand out. No, wait, if you do take it literally, it simply means hammer nails that stand out, doesn't it? You can't take offence to that, so it doesn't matter.

11th Listen

God I hate listening. Because I hate listening, I don't practice it and because I don't practice, it just gets worse and worse, another perfect storm. Again, can storms ever be perfect? Maybe rubbish storm is a better phrase.

10th Other

We're moving onto words I'm indifferent to, now. It's just a random word you can use in a sentence. No, I do apologise, it means something that's different, of course it does. However, I've already ranked these words, so I'm not changing the ordering.

9th Wardrobe

Am I saying I prefer wardrobes to foreigners? DEAR GOD, NO. Please forgive me for my unacceptable, foolish ordering. I love things that are different! Curries, lasagnes, you name it! However, I also like wardrobes, just not quite as much.

8th Truck

Driving a truck on a motorway for hours whilst listening to music sounds like a lot of fun to me. I guess I'll have to make do with my car, but does it make me feel powerful, like a truck would? Not really.

7th Attic

Ah, mysterious places filled with all kinds of mysterious items!

6th Construct

There have been lots of new buildings constructed in London over the last few years and I like looking at all of them. They're so big! Great stuff! I think the walkie talkie building looks dumb, though. It's even a bad name, who owns walkie talkies, now? It's like calling a building 'the fax machine' or 'the floppy disk'.

5th Cave

Like an attic, but times a thousand. Caves aren't perfect though, if you get lost in a cave you're screwed. If you get lost in an attic on the other hand... well, you're an idiot...

4th Chimpanzee

Surely the funnest of all animals! Apart from when they go crazy on people, that is, that really isn't fun at all. Most of the time, though? Adorable.

3rd Player

Where would I be without my CD player as I try to find things to write about? I'd be sitting alone in silence doing nothing. It's prison, isn't it? I am basically living in a fancy jail with carpet and music!!

2nd Medieval

Sometimes I wonder what it would be like to live in medieval times. Probably pretty bad, I would be a near blind person living in an insane asylum, probably in the form of a dungeon. However... the music? Pretty good! I like music from the era, it's pretty trippy. I'm wondering if that's because ancient people were away with the fairies. If so, sounds kinda fun. I'd just need to pretend to be normal, and just like that, I'd be living pretty well in a very, very blurry world of wonder!

1st Beat

Beat beats everything, of course it does. Unless by beat you mean 'hit', then it doesn't win at all. You can't win in life by assaulting others. Unless you're a boxer, then you have to. It's a complicated world, isn't it?

Right, all done! I guess I should say sorry to all foreigners again, but other than that, a pretty good ordering, I think. Now I'm going to watch Robin Hood and The Sword in the Stone! :D Bye!