

Simon: Hello! Seen any more crazy Youtube subtitles as you listened to music in the background?

Simon: Dear God, yes. First up, instead of saying 'the grave that gets dug', it said 'the grave that gets Doug'...

Simon: A grave that goes out and 'gets' people? Scary stuff.

Simon: I'd be scared if my name was Doug and a grave was out to get me.

Simon: What video were you watching?

Simon: A video about gangsters.

Simon: Ah, that makes sense. A bit of a dark subject for the for the food videos you like to watch...

Simon: Yes, I've never heard the topic of graves discussed in a food eating video.

Simon: The CEO of foodery 'Heart Attack Grill' frequently discusses the topic of death...

Simon: Yes, but he's a lunatic.

Simon: Seen any other subtitles?

Simon: If anything this one is even trippier...

Simon: Go on...

Simon: Get ready.

Simon: Yes?

Simon: Instead of saying 'the gaming devices are hitting the shelves', the subtitles said 'the gaming devices are hitting the chefs'...

Simon: How? why?

Simon: My thoughts exactly. Why chefs? So random. It sounds like an event in an apocalyptic disaster movie.

Simon: Huh.

Simon: After doing some Googling, did you know The Titanic is classed as a disaster film? I guess it is technically, but I never really felt scared watching it. If you get nightmares watching THAT, I mean... you're probably a nice guy, but you do need to toughen up a little bit.

Simon: I'd think he would be a nice guy too. Imagine a psychopath being upset by the Titanic film.

Simon: No idea how to react...

Simon: Next?

Simon: This one isn't quite so out there, but instead of 'I'm bringing the pain' the subs said 'I'm bringing the pay'. Talk about sending the wrong message completely.

Simon: What were you watching that time?

Simon: I didn't note that down, so I may never know for sure. Maybe another gangster video. I would say it couldn't have anything to do with a food video, but now that I think of it, it could, couldn't it. Too much food is painful.

Simon: Professional eaters do eat a lot.

Simon: Yes. I would say I admire them, but someone having a larger stomach than me, doesn't really impress me.

Simon: Next??

Simon: This one's from South Park: Instead of 'I want to talk to you about Kyle', it said 'I want to talk to you about cow.' First up, why would you approach someone and say that you want to 'talk about cow'? And secondly it should be either 'a cow' or 'cows'.

Simon: A farmer could say that...

Simon: Why would a child living in the suburbs say that?

Simon: To be goofy?

Simon: It was a serious conversation.

Simon: Dry humour?

Simon: Without humour.

Simon: You win again. I have no idea.

Simon: Imagine if I went up to someone and said 'I want to talk about cow'.

Simon: Weirdo...

Simon: Right!

Simon: Next?

Simon: Lastly, a bass note generated the notes 'good' and 'foreign'.

Simon: Why???

Simon: Haven't a clue.

Simon: Guess?

Simon: I guess bass notes ARE good, but they're certainly not foreign...

Simon: Some bass notes are foreign. What about bass notes from France? Maybe in the video the bass note did come from somewhere else.

Simon: I wouldn't know.

Simon: It's a mystery then. What are your thoughts on elephantiasis?

Simon: I saw someone with condition on TV and he looked really sad. I was thinking to myself 'it's really not bad, you're not making people feel ill or anything. I on the other hand, have a perfectly normal face (other than the weird ears), but I make lots of people feel sick. What's worse? Whatever the case, I move on.

Simon: Wow. That was really inspiring.

Simon: Yes, I think so.

Simon: What do you think of the upcoming Metallica album's name?

Simon: 72 Seasons? I think it's pretty good. Apparently it's a reference to how the first 18 years (or 72 seasons) of your life shape your personality. I heard it was the first three years that shape who you are, but I guess the band are artists not psychiatrists. I just think 72 is a creative way of saying 18, I can't explain why. 72 Seasons is a much better name than Metallica's 'Death Magnetic'. That was plain cheesy. Magnetic Death and Death Magnet are equally cheesy, so I'd just drop the whole idea altogether.

Simon: What do you think of the Metallica album 'Hardwired... to Self-Destruct'?

Simon: I have a similar opinion. 'Hardwire to Self-Destruct' isn't quite so bad, they should have stuck with that. The three dots after hardwired make the name sound really dramatic, which I think spoils things. Would you take it seriously if the military handled grenades that had the slogan 'Hardwired... to self-destruct'? No, it would be silly. What makes Metallica different?

Simon: Heard any other silly phrases?

Simon: 'Swear by' is a funny phrase isn't it? Why is it good if you swear by something? If I swore as I was next to something, you'd think I had a negative impression of it.

Simon: I once swore by a door when I stubbed my toe on it...

Simon: Was it good?

Simon: No.

Simon: There you go, then.

Simon: What do you think of the upcoming train strikes?

Simon: I'm going to have to miss the next London Comedy Writers meeting for the first time in about six years because of them! It's not too big of a deal though, as a LCW Christmas party is happening soon after in the same area. It would be delusional to say the train drivers were thinking of me when striking, and didn't want me to get bored of London Bridge by going there too often, but it is a nice way of looking at the world.

Simon: So you will look at the world that way?

Simon: Yeah.

Simon: Awesome. And do you know why the trains are really going on strike?

Simon: Is it because I missed a train once by a few seconds and the workers feel bad for me, and are blaming the people who are running things?

Simon: Try again...

Simon: Is it because the workers want more money so they can give some to me?

Simon: And again...

Simon: Is it because the workers are looking for attention? From me?

Simon: No.

Simon: I'm sorry, I'm all out of ideas.

Simon: I see. What about strikes that happened before you were born? What do you think caused those?

Simon: Wow, tough one.

Simon: Please try.

Simon: People imagining themselves fighting for me?

Simon: I'm sorry, but that made no sense whatsoever.

Simon: Could happen.

Simon: You're saying people in the past were really angry at the thought of you not getting special treatment, even though you weren't born, so angry, they risked themselves getting fired? Is that what you mean?

Simon: Yep.

Simon: I'm really getting angry with you...

Simon: Why?

Simon: The world doesn't revolve around you!

Simon: I know... It wouldn't be physically possible. I can't even imagine what that would look like.

Simon: No, I mean everyone's lives don't revolve around you.

Simon: Say that then.

Simon: To be clear, you think the people of the past wanted to save you before you were even born?

Simon: For the last time, yes!

Simon: Oh for flip's sake, the time has just past 15:00:55.

Simon: So what?

Simon: I missed a palindrome because of you!

Simon: 15:00:51?

Simon: Yes!

Simon: I'm so sorry...

Simon: Good. Now I have to wait until 15:11:51.

Simon: I said I was sorry!

Simon: I don't have to put up with this, I'm going.

Simon: :(

Simon: -_-

Simon: I saw on Amazon an item saying 'Batteries required: No.' Then it said 'Batteries included: No.' Why have batteries included if you don't need them?

Simon: Don't want to hear it. Bye.