

Simon: Hello, have you had any bad dreams recently?

Simon: Yes, I had a dream where a mouse was growing out of my arm!

Simon: Oh no...

Simon: Yes, I was horrified. I know what the mouse signifies, I don't know what the arm means, though. I guess the dream may be telling me I can't punch people very hard? As in I have a mousey punch? I have actually had that concern before I had the dream...

Simon: Well, there you go then.

Simon: I'm not sure why the dream had to be so scary, though. So I can't punch hard? Why is that a reason to be shocked? The better idea is to simply not get into a fight in the first place... I guess it's only a matter of time.

Simon: Use A.I. to find out what your dream means...

Simon: It says 'You have a mousey punch!'

Simon: I don't believe you.

Simon: Only joking, it says 'a 'pest' in your life is draining your energy or feeding off your productivity.'

Simon: Did your dream come after you started having problems with AdSense and with adverts not showing on your site anymore?

Simon: It would be a good explanation, wouldn't it? I have to be honest, I'm not sure, though. Maybe. Anyway, a much more positive explanation to another of my dreams was that it meant that my worries seem a lot more threatening than they really are. That's nice, isn't it? That also fits with the AdSense theme.

Simon: What dream was that?

Simon: It was a war based dream...

Simon: Oh. You'd expect such a dream to have a darker meaning...

Simon: I know!

Simon: Then again, you'd expect the mouse dream to have a darker meaning. I was worried it would say you're a freak...

Simon: Me too. Speaking of weird imagery, I have a bruise on my arm in more or less the exact same shape as the Monster Energy drink logo! There are three jagged vertical striped bars and one horizontal one, in the form of an M! God knows how I got that...

Simon: What does that signify?

Simon: I hope it doesn't mean anything... I'm a mouse and monster, too?

Simon: Worst blogger ever.

Simon: On the plus side, I like how the letter-shaped bruise is brown and the background is yellow, it looks genuinely stylish. In a way I don't want it to heal, but that would of course suggest I have a potentially serious medical problem.

Simon: I'm still wondering how the bruise was formed... Were you attacked by an employee of Monster Energy? Did you say his drinks weren't very nice?

Simon: I think I hit my arm on a door handle maybe? Not sure.

Simon: In the shape of an M?

Simon: More a squiggly dash shape...

Simon: Hm. Whatever the case, a good advert for Monster Energy!

Simon: Oh God no, I avoid that drink like I'd avoid a tramp on drugs and wielding a machete. In fact, I'd rather take my chances with the tramp and just try walking past him, I'm being 100% serious.

Simon: Because of the caffeine?

Simon: Yes, THAT'S an issue to be taken VERY seriously, not like the war dream.

Simon: I'll tell you a real nightmare...

Simon: Go on.

Simon: You drink Monster energy, get drafted to fight in a war, you see a mouse growing out of your arm and you get attacked by a tramp with a machete.

Simon: No, that would be the worst day of my life...

Simon: The worst dream of your life?

Simon: No, that's more or less a normal dream for me.

Simon: Would you like to talk of a more positive subject?

Simon: I was the first viewer of a Youtube video and its creator had a good 18.7 thousand followers!

Simon: Wow... you were the very first?

Simon: Apparently, yeah!

Simon: Would you like to elaborate on that?

Simon: No, that's the whole story.

Simon: What else is on your mind, then?

Simon: I said I only like listening to Alice in Chains in warm or hot weather. However, I only own an AIC Jumper, not a shirt, I only wear jumpers when it's cool or cold, making the statement that I like the band a lie, technically speaking when wearing the top.

Simon: How could you?

Simon: Really, I should attach a note to the clothing explaining everything, but who cares, really?

Simon: Yeah, even at an AIC concert, it would be weird...

Simon: An interesting conversation starter, though...

Simon: As A.I. keeps changing its mind, how about asking it what your mouse-arm dream means again?

Simon: This time it suggests people are invading my boundaries...

Simon: Is that true?

Simon: Oh you have no idea. It also says the dream can mean I don't feel fully in control of my actions, which is strangely accurate.

Simon: Maybe if you keep asking A.I. its opinion, it will eventually say you can't punch very hard!

Simon: I have to be honest, this conversation is making me feel a little uneasy...

Simon: Why?

Simon: I'm just wondering what else A.I. will say about me...

Simon: Maybe you'd like to talk about Van Halen, again?

Simon: Yes, do you know what VHS stands for?

Simon: Video Home System...

Simon: Yes... OR Van Halen's Son! (Wolfgang Van Halen).

Simon: No, it's Video Home System...

Simon: It can mean both.

Simon: Again, no.

Simon: Oh right.

Simon: Why do you keep talking about Van Halen when they're not your favourite band? At least anymore?

Simon: I've just seen lots of Van Halen based numberplates, that's all.

Simon: Ok, good reason. As you're so sensible, would you like to say something wise?

Simon: Yep. I once said no blind person has ever had schizophrenia, I should have said no one BORN blind has ever had schizophrenia, which is different. Extremely important to point out, otherwise there could be a schizophrenic out there who thinks to himself 'Well... blinding myself isn't perfect, but at least I'll be sane.' Life ruined.

Simon: THAT was wise...

Simon: And on that wise note, bye?

Simon: Yes, bye!